I I have it's hard, mama.

I know it can be hard to get up every day and have these little people rely on you. I know it's hard to feel like, sometimes, your world is so small. I want to remind you, you are the world. You are the world that those little ones revolve around. You are their nurture, their home, and their comfort. You are everything to them, and I hope, even on your hard days, you know how special you are. Especially to your little people.
